

Ice Skating - The Flip Jump

Sunday, 08 June 2008

Ice Skating - How to Perform the Six Basic Jumps

Ice Skating - The Single Salchow

Ice Skating - The Loop Jump

Ice Skating - The Axel Jump

Ice Skating - The Toe Loop

Ice Skating - The Flip Jump

Ice Skating - The Lutz Jump

Share

Â

Michael is a Three-time U.S. Men's Champion, Two-time World Bronze Medalist, Two-time Olympian, World Junior Champion, and World University Champion. He was the first U.S. man to land a quadruple toe loop in competition. In 2002, he debuted a new skate blade, the "Freedom Blade," which enabled him to perform tricky maneuvers that no one else could copy. He also originated a showy and gymnastic-like move called the "Tornado" that he performs in exhibitions to thunderous applause. It is a back flip with a full twist, and he is the only skater EVER to perform this dangerous stunt. Accolades fill his resume, including the Skating Magazine Readers Choice Award (2000) and the Professional Skaters' Association Edi Award in 1997, 1998, 2000 and 2001 for "Best Performance by a Male Skater." Off the ice, in 2001, International Figure Skating magazine named him one of the "Ten Most Beautiful People in Figure Skating." He is member of the National Honor Society, Phi Theta Kappa Collegiate Honor Society, and received his Associates Degree in Business at Prince Georges College. One of his most proud accomplishments came in 2002, when he was awarded the "Father of the Year" award from the National Fatherhood Initiative, for his commitment to family. After amassing 11 National medals, and over 30 international medals, Weiss hung up his competitive skates and set his sites on Professional skating in 2006. Within the last 2 years, Michael has been featured in 10 skating specials on NBC TV produced by Disson skating, including Andrea Bocelli Tribute on Ice, Gretchen Wilson's Country on Ice, Brian Boitano Skating Spectacular, Gymnastics and Skating Spectacular, Kristi Yamaguchi Family and Friends, just to name a few. He is currently touring with Emmy award winning - Smucker's Stars on Ice, performing in over 60 shows worldwide this year alone. He has also been steadfast in his commitment to recognize his good fortune and give back to the skating community. In 2004, he and wife Lisa Thornton Weiss created the Michael Weiss Foundation. Since its launch, the Foundation has given over $115,000 in scholarships to several young, promising U.S. Olympic hopefuls.